

FEATURED ARTIST SOURCEBOOK
DONALD PAULSON

The photography of Don Paulson has been consistently a top seller at Studio EL. Paulson's portfolio is an amalgam of refined, sweeping landscapes and intimate, organic abstractions. With the recent addition of an assortment of rustic imagery, his is the most abundant collection within Studio EL. This selection of work has been curated to illustrate the array of photographs that Don Paulson has to offer.

Well versed in color theory, Paulson specializes in therapeutic imagery with calm healing color palettes; both color and form are joined to create images which engage and relax the viewer. However, this collection spans from calm and soothing to contemporary and assertive and everything in between. Self-trained, with a background in nuclear engineering and a passion for technology, Paulson's forte is staying abreast of the rapidly changing world of digital photography and, using the most advanced equipment, he produces excellent imagery with a range of applications unrestricted by size.

In 1997, Paulson had the unique opportunity to combine his dedication to photography with his enthusiasm for the outdoors and, together with his partner Kathy, he embarked on a journey to capture the raw beauty that the natural world has to offer. Leading photo tours and teaching workshops between adventures, there is always a camera nearby. Paulson currently lives and works in northern Washington State where he is never far from the alluring landscape which inspires him.
